Morgan McEvoy
Colliers International

Colliers International in Downtown Los Angeles recruited Kitty Wallace as senior vice president. She oversees sales of apartment buildings, land development, condominium conversions, student housing, affordable housing and special assets throughout Southern California and the Western United States. Wallace previously served as senior vice president of Sperry Van Ness in West Los Angeles, where she ranked as the company's top multifamily advisor nationwide for six years and second agent nationwide for all product types. She was named L.A. County's top multifamily agent by Pierce-Eislen and was honored multiple times in Real Estate Southern California magazine's "Most Powerful Women in Real Estate" and the "Hot Broker List." In the past three years, Wallace has closed more than 100 multimillion-dollar transactions. She was named Rookie of the Year, Trainer of the Year, Agent of the Month for 11 consecutive months and Agent of the Quarter multiple times at Sperry Van Ness. Business development specialist Corri Nicol and analyst Mike Mortimer are providing support services to Wallace.

Colliers also appointed Morgan McEvoy as senior vice president of the retail services group. He oversees leasing of retail power centers and community shopping centers throughout Greater Los Angeles. McEvoy formerly served as senior associate of CB Richard Ellis, where he was the lead landlord representative for the South Bay retail team. In that role, he directed several retail projects in Southern California, including Plaza El Segundo and Howard Hughes Promenade. McEvoy's accomplishments include closing more than 120 lease transactions, valued at more than $65 million, in the last four years. In addition, he earned the CoStar Power Broker award in 2008 and 2009. Prior to CBRE, McEvoy was a sales associate at Sachse Real Estate, a boutique firm in Beverly Hills, where he focused on sales and leasing of new and existing retail projects throughout Southern California and represented clients such as AutoZone Inc., Circle K and Massage Envy.
